19 Donnie Herron (violin).

Notes

At encore break a stage rush did happen and the aisles were totally filled, then Bob started with Blowin' and stopped the song before the first chorus. He went to Charlie, talked to him went back to piano, Charlie talking with Tony, it was obvious that he announced to immediately starting with It Takes A Lot To Laugh..., stopped again after approx. half a minute, then Bob stood up, taking the center stage microphone and went in front of the audience, and what followed was the longest speech in years! Bob left piano, went in front of audience, start talking about taking pictures (if you take pictures, we won't be singing), went backwards (face to audience), stumbled over monitor behind him, nearly fell, went back in front of audience: "I say it again: take pictures or don't take pictures, are we gonna play or are we gonna pose, well"! after a few seconds you hear the audience: "play, play,..." and Bob went back to piano, starting the final encore again with first verse and played it in its entire beauty!
(taken from the review by Hermann Rechberger)
